Family Service's School-Based Counseling Program Receives Gift from Lauren Nicole Young Memorial Fund

Langhorne, Pa. (January 8, 2018) – The Young Family recently delivered a $15,000 gift on behalf of the Lauren Nicole Young Memorial Fund to Family Service Association of Bucks County in support of its School-Based Counseling program.

Family Service has partnerships with 20 schools across 8 school districts to provide counseling for children and adolescents directly in the schools they attend each day. The gift from the Lauren Nicole Young Memorial Fund will be used specifically to provide middle and high school students with mental health counseling and substance abuse treatment in an effort to reduce drug and alcohol abuse and prevent possible deaths from occurring.

Drug abuse is a major public health problem that affects communities and families nationwide. A recent national survey on drug use reports that by the twelfth grade, about half of adolescents have used an illicit drug at least once.ⁱ Locally, there were 168 drug-related overdose deaths in 2016 in Bucks County alone.ⁱⁱ

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), one of the key strategies in preventing overdose deaths is to ensure access to treatment for individuals who have a substance use disorder.ⁱⁱⁱ

Providing in-school counseling and substance abuse treatment eliminates many barriers that can prevent families from accessing these types of services for adolescents. Many families have difficulties attending traditional outpatient clinics due to hectic work schedules or transportation issues.

Because most adolescents spend a significant part of each day in a school building, Family Service's school-based program provides a convenient option for families, making it easy to access services and treatment. In addition, the school environment is a familiar one for students, and they may be more comfortable receiving counseling and substance abuse treatment in the school setting rather than at an outpatient facility.
